Sirhan Threat Told

SIRHAN, From A-1
has fired eight bullets in his attempt to kill the New York senator, today told of their part in the tragic series of events.

A YOUNG Kennedy volunteer, Fred Stroll, told the court he was assigned to guard a door near the platform where Kennedy made his victory speech and then, on signal, followed the Kennedy party into the palace.

Stroll said he thought they were en route to a gathering at a nightclub where the victory celebration was to continue.

"As I stepped into the party I heard a pop," Stroll said, "and I felt someone kick me in the left leg. I moved, then felt against a door."

Stroll, wounded in his left calf, said he realized he had been hit by a bullet.

When the battle ended, 26 demonstrators and 13 law officers were injured and 19 persons were under arrest.

THURSDAY'S disorder was the most violent outbreak at the campus since the Third World Liberation Front, a coalition of minority students, went on strike nearly a month ago.

Many in the mob were non-violent, off-campus radicals and Berkeley's "hippies."

The police finally used tear gas from rifle grenades, gas canisters, with gas containers of their own, and with tear gas and batons in their hands.

STROLL, under cross examination, admitted he fired a $10,000 assault and battery suit against Sirhan on Feb. 2 and had retained Melvin Bell, prominent San Francisco attorney.

Stroll asked $50,000 general damages as well as $1 million for "trauma and ill will." The suit also contends that Stroll suffered injuries to his face, arms and body when he was "savagely and violently" assaulted and beaten.

William Weiss, an associate director of the American Broadcasting Co., and also a shooting victim, testified that he "felt something fall out of my pocket."

"I put my hand to catch what I thought was there and there was nothing. I opened my coat and my white chest area was red with blood."

Weiss was hit by a bullet which entered his left waist and lodged to the right of his spine.

In other testimony Thursday, Judy Royer, secretary to former Gov. Edmund G. Brown and a part-time Kennedy worker, told the court she "chased" Sirhan out of the same party area where Kennedy met death "one to two hours" before the slaying.

"I used him to force Sirhan to leave the party area," she testified. "I told him to leave the party area."

"I told him to leave the party area," she testified. "I told him to leave the party area."

MS. EVANS, a teen blonde, said she walked into the party area to see Perry Seltzer, a press aide, when she heard "popping sounds."

"At the same time I lost my shoe, and bent over. Then I felt blood coming down my head... I felt my pain." A bullet had lodged under her scalp at the hairline and she was operated on the next day, she said.

'MISCONDUCT' IS CHARGED TO JUDGE

Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker was charged with misconduct Thursday in the trial of accused assassin Sirhan Sirhan after he "abused" seven, ended court action to the press.

On an hour-long, 10-chapter session before court convened Thursday, the 49-year-old judge admitted he gave Sirhan information that the 24-year-old Jordanian "would be guilty to first-degree murder if he was not in the prison, and he denied the plea."

The discussion arose when Judge Walker, for the second time in a five-over-a-week, denied a defense motion for a mistrial on the basis of prejudicial publicity.

COOPER DENIED any motion of the defense team had given out the original story but insisted the story came from the "artistic attorney of Sirhan" or from "Evelyn Youngblood."

Chief Deputy District Attorney Lynn B. Cooper immediately denied the article originated with them. Cooper, obviously annoyed, pointed out that when the original story came out, all members of the jury were questioned individually.

Walker denied it. "I told them the plea was not a plea," he said, "and I told them the plea was not a plea."

According to a transcript of Thursday's proceedings, Walker confirmed that he gave none of that information out "except" regarding Thursday's story.

"I told them the plea was not a plea," he said, "and I told them the plea was not a plea."

COOPER LATER confirmed his charge of misconduct as Sirhan's attorney, in releasing misleading information to the press.

"I don't mean to suggest," Cooper said, "that I am a lawyer, but I am a lawyer."

Walker denied it. "I told them the plea was not a plea," he said, "and I told them the plea was not a plea."

PEACE, From A-1
provide mutual troop withdrawal, also is considered possible.

From the beginning of the four-party talks, Lodge has said that measures of military de-escalation be the first order of business.

Lodge tried hard to reassure the other side that the United States shares their expressed view that a final settlement ought to conform to the spirit of the 1954 Geneva agreements on Vietnam.

Taking Thieu's words at the previous session as his own, Lodge affirmed: "We support the principle of sovereignty, independence and national integrity of Vietnam."

The final encouraging sign was a matter of atmosphere.

At their news conference after the session, the spokesmen for North Vietnam and the UN said: "We are not just men, we are men."

They will have to "show results" of $170,000 just like the men, and be required to deposit the customary $38,000 with Lodge. They will have to be British by birth or nationality and a permanent resident of this country.
